A IS FOR ARTICHOKE

AMERICA'S TEST KITCHEN

A is for Artichoke

An artichoke is a flower we eat.

This flower is a type of thistle that can grow to be six feet tall. Small baby artichokes come from the same plant as regular globe artichokes. Baby artichokes grow on lower branches of the plant and get less sun, so they are not as big.

B is for Brine

A brine is a mixture of salt and water.

To make a brine, dissolve salt (and sometimes sugar) in water. Soaking a turkey or chicken in a brine before it is roasted helps the meat come out extra juicy and well-seasoned.

C is for Caramelization

Caramelization is a fancy word for browning.

When sugar molecules are heated, they undergo chemical reactions that produce brown-colored compounds and create new flavors, some sweet and some bitter.

D is for Dulse

Dulse is a red sea vegetable.

Sea vegetables (also called seaweed) are one of the most nutritious foods on the planet. They're delicious, too. Other sea vegetables include nori (the wrapper on sushi), kelp, and wakame.

E is for Edamame

Edamame are fresh green soybeans.

These small crunchy legumes are hidden inside bright green pods. You can steam edamame right in their pods. Then, open the pod with your teeth and let the bean pop into your mouth. (Don't eat the tough pod.)

F is for Farro

Farro is a nutty whole grain popular in Italy.

Farro is an ancient grain (kernels have been found in Egyptian tombs!). It is related to other heritage grains like emmer, spelt, and einkorn. Farro has a chewy texture, which is especially good in salads and soups.

A is for Addition

Addition is the mathematics of counting.

We use the plus symbol + for addition. The opposite of addition is subtraction. We use the minus symbol - for subtraction.

B is for Base

$$2^{2 \times 2} = 8$$

A base number is a number being multiplied by itself many times.

An exponent is the number of times the base is being multiplied. Rather than writing  $2 \times 2 \times 2$ , we write  $2^3$ . The number 2 is the base and 3 is the exponent.
