FUN AND PUZZLES
I never met Shere Khan (only Bagheera, who is super cool, too), but I think tigers are so strong, fierce, and beautiful. I ended up going into research mode to learn more about Bengal tigers—I couldn’t help myself!

The Bengal tiger is the national animal of India, and 70% of the world’s tigers are found in India. Bengal tigers also live in Bangladesh, Nepal, and Bhutan. Unlike other cats, tigers love to swim!

Tigers are among the largest of the big cats. A Bengal tiger can weigh between 240 and 500 pounds. That’s equal to more than six of me!

Tigers have retractable claws, similar to house cats. This means they can pull them in when they’re not needed. A tiger’s roar can be heard over two miles away!
I never met Shere Khan (only Bagheera, who is super cool, too), but I think tigers are so strong, fierce, and beautiful. I ended up going into research mode to learn more about Bengal tigers—I couldn’t help myself!

A tiger has its own camouflage: stripes! They let the tiger blend into the jungle while it’s hunting. No two tigers have the same stripe pattern, just like no two humans have the same fingerprints. And if you shave off a tiger’s fur, you’ll see the exact same stripes on its skin. So unique!

Tigers are carnivores, or meat eaters. They sneak up on their prey and—BAM!—surprise attack. They hunt in the early morning or late evening and sleep in the shade during the day.

The Bengal tiger’s teeth are about 3 inches long! That’s as long as an adult’s index finger.

Humans have cut down forests and hunted tigers for their hides. This has caused the Bengal tiger to become endangered—which means they could go out of existence forever if they’re not properly cared for. A hundred years ago, there were over 100,000 tigers. Today, only about 2,500 Bengal tigers live in the wild.
Mowgli’s story didn’t exactly have me rolling around laughing. Being kicked out of the wolf pack, escaping the monkeys, and battling a mean tiger are way serious. But, hey, he handled it like a pro, and who says the jungle can’t be funny? Here are some animal jokes that always make me and my friends crack up.

What did the leopard say after finishing his meal?
That really hit the spot!

Where do hippopotamuses keep their money?
In the riverbank.

What’s as big as an elephant but weighs nothing?
An elephant’s shadow.

What do monkeys sing at Christmas?
“Jungle Bells.”
What’s the best thing about deadly snakes?
They’ve got poison-ality.

Which snakes are found on cars?
Windshield vipers.

How do you know when there’s an elephant under your bed?
When your nose touches the ceiling.

What do you call bears with no ears?
B!

What do you call a lost wolf?
A where-wolf!

What did one wolf say to the other?
“Howl’s it going?”

On which side does a tiger have the most stripes?
On the outside.
Bagheera and Baloo know how to talk to all the animals. (That’s how they find the best fruit!) They pay attention—which I understand, since I try not to miss the details when I read a book. What about you? Take my brain-bender quiz to see how closely you read this story.

Mowgli grew up in the wolf pack, and he called them his family. Sometimes you have more than one wolf pack. I’m really lucky, because not only do I have my parents, my sister, Donna, and our dog, Rocco, but I also have my basketball buds and our bookstore crew—thanks to Ghostwriter. Think about who you’re thankful for in your own wolf pack before taking my challenge out for a spin!

Can you take the letters in the words WOLF PACK and make smaller words? How many can you make?

Here are a few words to get you started:

cow       cloak       foal

Here’s how to keep score
Each 3-letter word = 1 point
Each 4-letter word = 2 points
Each 5-letter word = 3 points
Each word with 6 letters or more = 4 points
I’d love to learn how to talk to animals, like Mowgli can. I wonder what happens when animals don’t understand something other animals say. Do you think they have animal dictionaries?

Draw a line connecting the vocabulary word from the story with the correct definition.

1. Scuffle a. a glowing piece of coal or wood in the ashes from a fire
2. Pierce b. careful about staying away from danger
3. Ember c. a long piece of material draped around the body like a dress, worn by women in Southeast Asia
4. Snarl d. to make a hole in or through
5. Cautious e. seeds of a type of plant called a legume. Other legumes are chickpeas and peanuts
6. Sari f. an angry growl, or to say with a growl
7. Lentils g. a fight in a rough, confused way

When you own a bookstore, you’re probably a total book expert, like my grandpa. We made this reading list together. (Okay, maybe he did most of it, but I helped.)

If you liked The Jungle Book, here are some other books we think you’ll enjoy.

Books with Talking Animals

The One and Only Ivan by Katherine Applegate
Charlotte’s Web by E. B. White
Fantastic Mr. Fox by Roald Dahl
The Wild Robot by Peter Brown

Books that Take Place in India

The Night Diary by Veera Hiranandani
The Bridge Home by Padma Venkatraman

A Graphic Novel with Talking Animals and India!

Pashmina by Nidhi Chanani
I love to make accordion paper snakes. I’ve decorated my room with them—and they’re fun to play with, too! I can’t wait until my brother, Curtis, comes home from school. I’m making a snake that wraps all the way around our bedroom. He’s going to be SO SURPRISED.

What you need:
- construction paper in two colors
- tape
- glue
- black marker
- googly eyes (if you have them)
- red construction paper
1. With the help of an adult, cut three or four strips from the paper. The strips should all be about the same width and length. The easiest way to do this is to fold a piece of paper in half, then fold it in half again and again and again. Unfold the paper and use your scissors to cut along the fold lines. Do this for each paper color.

2. Take a strip of each paper color. Place them in an L shape. Tape them together where they overlap.
3. Now it’s time to start folding the strips into an accordion. Fold the horizontal strip over the vertical strip. Crease the fold to make another L shape.

4. Now fold the strips in the other direction. Keep repeating.

5. Before you run out of paper, cut off one of the strips of paper. Tape the end of the short strip to the longer strip so your snake doesn’t unravel. Leave the end of the longer paper strip unfolded.
6. Cut a snake-shaped head out of a piece of construction paper. You can glue on googly eyes or draw eyes and nostrils with a black marker. Cut a tongue from red construction paper and glue it onto the snake’s head. Tape the head onto the end of the long paper strip.

7. Do you want to make a longer snake? Just attach several strips of the same color together with glue or tape. (When I need a break from folding, I put tape on where I’ve ended and then remove it when I’m ready to start again.)

Here’s the finished snake—isn’t it cute?
Ghostwriter has a question for you. Use the clues below to decode the secret answer.
